Cisco Systems named Dean Dorton Technology, a premier provider of technology solutions for companies throughout the region, to the Cisco Winner's Circle. Of the more than 50,000 Cisco partners world-wide, only 350 top performing Cisco commercial partners received the Winner's Circle honor, signifying the top level of success (double-digit growth) in the midmarket with Cisco. Dean Dorton Technology is the only Cisco partner in Kentucky to achieve this distinguished honor.

Information technology is growing at an unprecedented pace and the world is becoming more connected and innovative than ever before. Companies striving to achieve high levels of success must be committed to regularly assessing their software, security, and collaborative solutions. Most companies have a strategic technology partner like Dean Dorton Technology, who can help modernize networks, maintain security, and offer unified communication systems through the latest state-of-the-art solutions.

"Companies are seeking ways to respond faster, empower their workforce, and personalize their customers' experiences," says Jason Miller, Director of Business Consulting Services. "In short, the digital transformation is creating boundless opportunities, but in order to reap the benefits companies need trusted technology advisors that understand their business, goals, and keys to success. We are truly honored to partner with Cisco, the industry leader, and provide meaningful technological advancements to our clients."

"This is certainly a great achievement in working with Cisco, representing the value we bring to clients far beyond the basics. I am thrilled to have a direct impact on the technological advancements of companies throughout Kentucky and the Ohio Valley and look forward to keeping Kentucky's companies competitive through the use of innovative technology," says David Rice, a Senior Infrastructure Engineer at Dean Dorton and member of Cisco's Small Midmarket Business (SMB) Partner Advisory Board.
